

Music touches the hearts and souls of everyone—it is a universal language that transcends time, space, and culture. While it holds deep personal meaning for individuals, it also serves as a powerful connection between people.

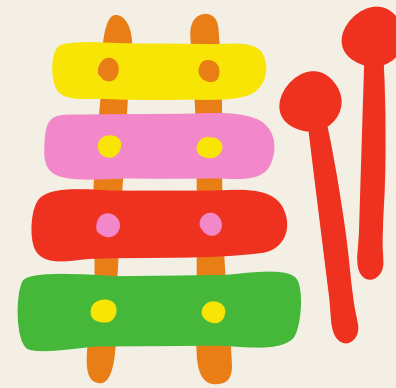

In a preschool classroom, music can be woven into daily routines, whether playing softly in the background during playtime or being used for movement and dance activities. However it is incorporated, it is essential to select songs that reflect the children's diverse cultures and celebrate inclusivity in a positive way.

MUSIC MONDAY

Music engages the whole child—body, mind, and soul—stimulating their thinking, inspiring creativity, and fostering a sense of belonging. It unites us while honoring our individuality, opening doors to learning, and allowing children to explore the world through sound and rhythm.
